Synopsis

Kenn Duncan (1928-1986) was a dancer and a skating champion, but badly injured his leg. While recuperating, he got a job as a gofer for a photographer and gradually learned how to use the camera. "I began to try to recapture the spirit of dancing through photography." He is best known for this book--nudes of male and female dancers and thespians, solo and in groups, in motion or posed, with an emphasis on the male body. His archives were acquired by the NYC Public Library in 2003. Paperback in a matching publisher's slipcase. Unpaginated; gravure-printed b&w full-page photographic plates throughout; 11 x 14 inches.
